StanPlus to introduce air ambulance services pan India

19 August 2021 | News

The company is working on to create specific tech platform for air ambulances

StanPlus, a leading private patient logistics and emergency medical response company, has announced its foray into the air ambulance space. While the company has been operating air ambulances during the COVID-19 pandemic amid the increased demand for transferring critical patients, StanPlus will now systematically pursue it as a new vertical.

The company’s air ambulances offer COVID, non-covid, emergency, neonatal, ECMO and cargo transfers. Each cutting-edge ambulance is equipped with the best quality monitors, ventilators, oxygen, and emergency boxes, etc.

StanPlus is currently aggregating the best resources in the market. It is utilising its in-built fleet software for technical support and input, while also creating a specific tech platform for air ambulances. The company is creating dedicated teams across the country.

Prabhdeep Singh, Founder and CEO – StanPlus, said, “At the moment, there are very few players in this market and it lacks standardisation. Therefore, it is ripe for transformation by a player such as us that offers advanced, regulated and high-quality services.”
