Coimbatore-based Health Basix raises seed round of funds

06 October 2021 | News

The capital will be used to build team, product development, marketing, and setting up in-school clinics to deliver connected health to one million families

Health Basix, a paediatric healthcare delivery platform, has closed the seed round of funding from marquee investors Raj Mishra of Indea Capital, Nicola Blackwood - ex-deputy Minister for Health and Chair of Genomics England, Dr Anantha Nageswaran - Co-founder of Aavishkaar Venture Capital/Economic Advisor to the PM of India and other HNI's.

The paediatric health platform and family health app by Toro Health, founded by Swathy Rohit, Vishnu Prasath, and Ramesh Krishnan in March 2021 said it will use the capital for building its team, product development, marketing, and setting up in-school clinics to deliver connected health to one million families.

"Our main goal is to identify and connect kids to the care they need at the right time," said Swathy, CEO, Heath Basix.
