A Mumbai-based charitable trust launched the free bike ambulance service for swift movement through traffic in case of an emergency

Lodha Foundation, Mumbai has introduced Bike ambulance services, equipped with a first-aid kit and oxygen cylinder in Mumbai to deal with medical emergencies amid heavy traffic.

A Mumbai-based charitable trust launched the free bike ambulance service for swift movement through traffic in case of an emergency.

The foundation backed by a local lawmaker has come up with the idea of a bike ambulance service, which will carry patients to hospitals free of cost in order to make them cover long distances in short period of time during the golden hour.

The service is unique in its approach as sometimes four-wheeler ambulances get stuck in traffic.

A politician and founder of the charitable trust, Mangal Prabhat Lodha said that the ambulance was capable of entering narrow lanes and it had all the facilities that a normal ambulance have including, medical kit, stretcher and oxygen cylinder, along with the provision of a space for doctors to sit at the back.
