

G Biosciences to launch educational programs

09 March 2005 | News

G Biosciences, a proteomic-products player, will launch international standard biotechnology workshops and training programs, BioScience Excellence, in India. "Our objective has been to design and develop kits for practical understanding of genes, proteins and their relationship in living cells," said Dr Aftab Alam, CEO, G Biosciences. "The program will be launched in India in April 2005 with the registrations starting in March. Each batch can accommodate about 60 students," Alam added.
