The company intends to provide primary healthcare services in line with its vision for affordable and accessible healthcare solutions

Docprime.com, a Policybazaar group company is partnering with a multi-platform community First Moms Club (FMC) with an aim to bring digital accessibility to healthcare. The company intends to provide primary healthcare services in line with its vision for affordable and accessible healthcare solutions. It has integrated its Online Consultation Platform on the First Moms Club's website which will help to get its target audience (Moms) free and timely medical advice for not only their kids but the whole family.

Commenting on the partnership, Ashish Gupta, CEO, Docprime.com said, "With inadequate infrastructure and limited resources, the country faces a challenge to achieve health for all. And, the rising cost of healthcare adds to this crisis. Docprime's constant endeavor of providing the best healthcare services with a prime focus on primary health care is a step towards affordable healthcare for masses. In this journey, we are happy to partner with a platform like First Moms Club's to reach over 200000 organic users who visit the website per month."

Ruchita Shah, CEO & Founder, First Moms Club said, "Over the last decade, we at FMC have realized that mothers in general and our members, in particular, have a whole range of health and medical questions ranging from daily home remedies to common ailments to more complex ones that really ought to be answered by trained professionals. With the Docprime partnership, mothers can get help from people best equipped to do so while being guaranteed all the support they have come to expect from fellow community members."

The overarching benefits of securing the entire family through this alliance will aid women within the age group of 18-60 years & above and mothers who can take medical advice for their kids too across 100 Indian cities in India. FMC has wide presence across all social media platforms with over 15K+organic followers on Instagram, 4K+ twitter followers (organic) and has a Facebook Global community with 70,000+ organic members.

Docprime.com is the latest venture of the Policybazaar Group with an aim to redefine how Indians seek healthcare services. It connects patients with doctors in real-time and bridges the gap between need and fulfillment using state-of-the-art technology and a robust offline network.
