BioSpectrum
the business of Bi
24 years of leveraging the business of Bio
www.biospectrumindia.co

Merck invites applications for young scientist award

21 August 2019 | News

The awards will be decided by a well acclaimed jury from leading science organisations and academia from the industry.

Merck, a leading science and technology company, invites applications for the 'Merck Young Scientist Award'. The company will award 6 curious minds. The award is aimed at offering a career push with worthwhile incentives to young scientists.

Merck Young Scientist Award is aligned with Merck's vision of solving some of the toughest problems in life sciences by collaborating with the scientific community.

The application window is open from 1st August 2019 and will close on 15th September 2019.

The eligibility criteria are as follows -

- Any researcher/scientist with less than 10 years of research experience (Post PhD)
- Scientist from academic or research institutes across India
- Researchers residing in India

Eligible applicants are invited to apply on the website- https://mysaindia.com/

Important Dates

- Submission Period: 1st August – 15th Sept 2019
- Review Period: 16th Sept – 15th Nov 2019
- Award Ceremony: November 2019

Awards

Cash award: Rs 2,00,000

Travel Award: Rs 1,50,000

The awards will be decided by a well acclaimed jury from leading science organisations and academia from the industry. The jury is chaired by Dr Shahid Jameel and co-chaired by Dr Anurag Agarwal, Director, CSIR Institute of Genomics and Integrated Biology, Prof Apurva Sarin, Director, Instem, Human Frontiers Science Program, Dr Davinder Gill, CEO, Hilleman Laboratories, Dr Radha Rangarajan, CEO, Vitas Pharma.