"Home grown companies should beef up manufacturing"- GS Chugh

29 May 2020 | Views

Gurmit Singh Chugh, Chairman, Translumina Therapeutics, New Delhi talks about the way forward post COVID-19

"Market access and quality control are crucial factors and are intertwined. Patients want the best quality of healthcare products, regardless of where they are manufactured, making it a watershed moment for homegrown med-tech and pharmaceutical companies to up the ante, and beef up manufacturing. The essence of a vibrant and self-reliant domestic healthcare delivery model is Indian companies making high quality and proven technologies and hospitals accepting and believing in their efforts rather than blindly accepting “imported” products.”
