The hospital has a Level 4 Regional NICU to treat critical conditions in neonates

SPARSH Group of Hospitals announced the launch of its exclusive women and child care area, uniquely positioning it as a first of its kind super speciality hospital in Bengaluru to offer multi-modal care for women and children. Located right next to its flagship Superspecialty Hospital at Infantry Road, the unit is equipped to handle medical complexities seamlessly with the support and availability of multi-disciplinary specialists all on the same campus.

The new 50-bed facility will provide 360-degree treatment across the spectrum of healthcare for women and children. The facility comprises Neonatal Intensive Care Beds (NICU), Paediatric Intensive Care Beds (PICU) for infants and children, High dependency Unit for pregnant Women (HDU), with ultra-modern technologies. It will also include the department of foetal medicine that is equipped to manage foetal anomalies, multiple pregnancies and non-invasive prenatal testing ethically and on par with global standards. The hospital has a Level 4 Regional NICU to treat critical conditions in neonates like managing babies weighing just 500 gms at birth and premature 25 weeks. The hospital will also have a fully equipped baby (neonatology) transport ambulance available 24x7.
