The digital health startup will offer 24x7 free telephonic consultation, medicine delivery, diagnostics and ambulance services

Noida-headquartered Digital healthcare startup Medpho has launched its healthcare services in Agra, Uttar Pradesh. Shashank Saini, CEO and Founder, Medpho said, "At Medpho, we support the right to health and are dedicated to providing all healthcare services over a single call. Our focus is to become the ultimate healthcare community providing high quality, affordable, and accessible medical care services across India. We promise to offer full-stack healthcare services, including free doctor consultations, ambulance services, medicine delivery, and other medical care services to the people of Agra."

Medpho was established in October 2020 and has helped more than one lakh people in less than a year. It offers 24x7 free telephonic consultation, medicine delivery, diagnostics and ambulance services to the urban and rural communities.

Medpho is committed to delivering the best affordable healthcare services and solutions to the communities and aims to create a robust healthcare infrastructure in India.
