"COVID-19 has brought at the forefront the gaps in the Indian healthcare infrastructure, driving a lot of innovation in the sector in the last 2 years. Companies have been quick to pivot- recognising such gaps and making changes to their offerings swiftly. Such consumer-/need-centric shift in the mindset of companies as well as the plethora of cutting-edge health-tech companies being founded in India, the Indian healthcare sector is at the precipice of a positive transformation, paving the way for a future with higher access to quality care."
