Founder Speaks-

"There are about 200 million urban women in India of which the women's wellness industry is pegged at $50Bn. This is an opportune time for getting women to take charge of their health in a way that works with their unique physiology- and a sweet spot too that is being filled in by smart, accessible and personalised offerings from femtech players in the country. I strongly believe that technology can be huge leverage here to create an adaptive and personalised health experience for every woman and that's why at Savage we are building the future of women's wellness solutions driven by hormone cycle and technology."
