23 May 2022 | News

Dr Poonawalla was felicitated for his lifelong contribution towards improving public health

The Johns Hopkins Bloomberg School of Public Health awarded the Dean's Medal to Serum Institute of India (SII) Chairman, Dr Cyrus S Poonawalla, Chairman, Serum Institute of India for his outstanding work in developing and delivering affordable vaccines and contributing to the Indian biosciences industry for decades now.

Dr Poonawalla said, “It is a proud moment for me to receive this prestigious award from Johns Hopkins Bloomberg School of Public Health. Over the years, our constant endeavour has been to provide high-quality vaccines with regular supplies, which ensure excellent immunization coverage to children and families worldwide at an affordable, sustainable price point. This award is a motivation for SII to take up bigger challenges ahead and fortifies our objective of inclusive healthcare for all.”
