The funds will be allocated towards tech development for a better customer experience

Mumbai-based Healthtech startup Quali55care has raised an angel round of $100K from ah! Ventures Angel Platform. Quali55care is currently operating in Mumbai and Pune and offering its rental solutions via quali55care.com.

The brand looks forward to a successful Phase 2 that could multiply its growth and establish it as one of India's top health tech platforms by growing its offering further into 14 cities with a large pool of inventory by taking quality vendors on their platform.

It aims to solve the problem of accessing durable medical equipment for home care with affordability. Medical equipment rental market is very unorganized and lacking transparency in terms of offerings.

According to Harddik K Patel, CEO and Founder, quali55care, the funds will be allocated towards tech development for better customer experience, product offerings and taking the distribution process to the next level, and onboarding new talent to optimise the team for its future goals.
