To support cardiologists and caregivers in effectively managing heart failure, ensuring improved health outcomes for patients

Lupin Digital Health (LDH) has announced the launch of its newest offering, Lyfe Digital Heart Failure Clinic in India. This groundbreaking e-clinic aims to help cardiologists and caregivers manage heart failure patients effectively from the comfort of their homes.

Heart failure affects over 10 million Indians today and is a progressive condition leading to repeated hospitalizations and is the leading cause of cardiac deaths. The Lyfe Digital Heart Failure (HF) Clinic has been developed to address the growing burden on healthcare infrastructure due to increasing heart failure instances in India. It combines in-clinic consultation with at-home patient monitoring and care.

A team of experts, including paramedics, nurses, cardiotherapists, health coaches and care managers, work together with the treating cardiologist to deliver improved patient health outcomes. The system is equipped with advanced technology, providing doctors with real-time updates and patients with personalised care pathways, emergency services and educational resources.

Lupin Digital Health has recently partnered with the American College of Cardiology (ACC), further solidifying its commitment to drive innovation in cardiac care.
