To further contribute towards building a future-ready healthcare workforce

Mumbai-based P.D. Hinduja Hospital & Medical Research Centre has signed a Memorandum of Understanding (MoU) with Dr. Homi Bhabha State University (HBSU) to jointly conduct postgraduate (PG) allied (paramedical) health courses.

The hospital has been offering allied health sciences skill-based education in strategic partnership with the Lifesupporters Institute of Health Sciences (LIHS) for over a decade.

The MoU aims to address the growing demand of skilled healthcare professionals and strengthen the quality of paramedical education in India.

The programme expected to commence in August 2026 will be offered across multiple specialised areas with an intake of 20-30 students per course.

Leveraging the academic expertise of Dr. Homi Bhabha State University, the clinical strengths of P. D. Hinduja Hospital, and the training expertise of LIHS, this collaboration seeks to bridge this critical gap and aligns with recent government priorities focused on strengthening allied healthcare education and workforce development.

As part of this initiative, skill based postgraduate certificate programs will be offered in areas such as Pathology Technician, Dialysis Technician, Operation Theatre Technician (OT), Intensive Care Unit Technician (ICU), Radiology Technician, Medical Records & Health Information Technician, Neurology Technician, Central Sterile Supply Department Technician (CSSD), and Endoscopy Technician. The courses are designed to make students industry-ready within one year through a structured and intense training plan.
