

World Medical Council honors Dr Mukesh Batra

04 June 2014 | News | By BioSpectrum Bureau

World Medical Council honors Dr Mukesh Batra

Dr Batra was recognized for his phenomenal contribution in the healthcare space through Homeopathy.

Commenting on the occasion, Dr Mukesh Batra said, "I feel honored and humbled to receive world recognition for my efforts to promote homeopathy. The award accords due and deserving recognition to homeopathy - the world's second-largest medical system, according to WHO."

"....The journey for me has been challenging yet fulfilling. The core belief on which I built my company is to provide health and wellness to those in need, through cost-effective and safe homeopathy, along with the best scientific and technological advances," he explained.

The 'Lifetime Achievement Award' recognizes personalities whose outstanding career achievements have earned them national or international prominence.

It also pays tribute to those who have demonstrated highest level of professionalism, and serve as a role model for current and future healthcare professionals.